Story Of Russian Education Like Fairy Tale - J. B. Bastedo

Must See That Education In All Nations Is Colored By Peace, After This War, Principal Says

The following account of education in Russia, Germany and Italy before the war was given by Principal J. B. Bastedo of Newmarket high school in an address before the Newmarket Lions club at the King George hotel Monday evening.

Speaking at an educational conference in 1920, Sir Auckland Geddes, then British ambassador to the United States said:

"The most vitally interesting thing to foreigners in connection with any national education is what I call its color. If your secretary of state knows the color of education in France, in Germany, in the British Empire, or in any country of the world, he will know well how the nation will be thinking 10 years hence."

In view of present-day circumstances, in which we find the world divided into two armed camps, I thought it might be interesting to see what has been the color of some educational systems that have been followed since we finished the "war to end war" some 24 years ago. Time will permit me to do this only in outline, and I will promise not to bore you with figures or educational statistics.

To begin with, in those countries that are now rallying around Great Britain to preserve the democratic way of life, education was colored by the hope born of the sacrifices and hardships of the last war, namely, the hope that war would be no more. And there was good reason for that; because did it not appear that democracy and freedom were at last to be brought within reach of all peoples when the covenant of the League of Nations was subscribed to by 58 member-nations? And not only through its political clauses, but also through its interest in such matters as international labor, health, economics, finance, traffic in women and children, the drug traffic, child welfare, etc., the League of Nations held out hope not only of a world at peace, but of a better world for the great masses of people.

In the ten years between 1920-1930 more international organizations—such as your Lions club here—were formed than had existed in all the years previous to the war; their purposes were manifold and varied, but they indicated the desire of peoples all over the world to understand each other better. The invention of the radio just at that time was also a great agent in promoting "good will among men"; and it might have accomplished great things if the dictator nations had not later denied their people the right to listen to foreign broadcasts.

Certainly it appeared that in the Great War democratic principles had triumphed over autocracy and that the common man or individual was to come into his own. Accordingly, in the post-war years social welfare services expanded enormously in most countries; governments became more interested in, acquainted with and responsive to the needs of the average citizen; public education took a more prominent place and was made available to the masses; adult especially on this continent, educational activities were undertaken; technical and vocational schools expanded rapidly; and enrolments in universities, reached a new high. With education came the extension of the franchise; and in most countries this included the women, who previous to the war had been denied the right in all nations but four.

All these evidences that the world, with a few exceptions, was progressing democratically and peacefully reached their zenith with the signing of the Briand-Kellogg Pact in 1932 by 62 nations. It seemed that Tennyson's dream of "a parliament of man, a federation of the world," was about to come true; and that with no more outlays to make for war, our wealth, resources and human effort could be expended to produce a better and a more sensible human race. Under these circumstances, in the countries that still adhere to the democratic way of life, education was colored in the main by the observance of five basic principles:

(1) The children of the schools should have free minds; by which is meant that the teacher aims to develop in pupils minds that are free and resourceful, minds capable of applying reason to new situations and discovering the truth, and minds powerful enough to resist attempts of other minds to dominate them.

(2) Free teachers—permitted to have their own organizations, to enjoy the privileges of the average citizen, to work in various ways to promote education and not to be controlled in their thinking or teaching by some central government, committee, or party.

(3) Free children, having the right to join voluntarily such organizations as the Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Junior Red Cross, etc., without allowing any group or party or organization to separate the child from the influence of a good home.

(4) Uncensored texts. By having a variety of textbooks that survive only when they are adequate and that can be publicly criticized at any time when they

Bruce Foote and Percy Hutchinson were in London last week attending a tractor mechanics school.

Eleven nominations were filed at the third meeting of the ratepayers of the police village of Holland Landing on Monday evening. Polling day is set for Jan. 18. Samuel Deans was the only nominee to qualify on Dec. 28 and a new meeting was called for Jan. 4. Meanwhile it was found that through an error Marshall Evans, the returning officer, had not been sworn in. The proceedings up to then were declared illegal and the village still needed three trustees.

Six candidates qualified as follows: Henry Draper, carpenter, Samuel Deans, gardener, Arthur Foster, laborer, Barney O'Leary, gentleman, Aubrey Stephenson, foreman, Percy Thompson, farmer.

HOW MUCH LONGER?

People who live in rural Ontario and see something of what farmers have been up against since the war began have little doubt about the justice of the complaints made at the meeting of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture in Toronto last week.

It is true that farmers have benefitted from the price ceiling (a grand job on the part of Ottawa, incidentally) on the things they buy, but the fact remains that prices were frozen at a time when farm and industrial prices were much out of alignment. That is true in spite of the fact that farm prices had worked up a little bit from depression levels.

This is obvious from the fact that industry can pay wages and cost of living bonuses that will attract help while the farmer, generally speaking, cannot pay sufficient wages to keep even his own sons on the farm.

The farmer is expected to produce great quantities of foodstuffs out of patriotism. The industrialist gets prices that will enable him to buy his materials and hire his labor in the open market, or he is subsidized. Or he may even be working on a cost-plus contract which enables some industrialists, as the Ontario Federation charges, to "hoard non-essential men in a manner which is not only wasteful but harmful to the war effort."

Newmarket people know that this charge is true from the information given them by some of their fellow citizens working in war plants.

To say that farmers are making good money, as some do say, is to lose perspective. Many farmers are putting money in the bank but they are not really making a profit. The money they bank is not adequate to pay themselves and their families a reasonable wage for their interminable hours, let alone give them a proper return on their investment.

Most farmers who are putting something aside are able to do so because they have what is really a low standard of living, a standard away below that of the industrial worker. They live in stove-heated houses, with no bathroom and no water running into the house. Often they are without electric lights. They have a table which is elaborate in the delectable products of the kitchen stove but which is in the winter-time too often poor in the imported and hot-house fruits and green and leafy vegetables which have become such a commonplace on the city table and which are so important to rugged health.

Agriculture has been treated as a peasant class from which enormous effort and great sacrifice can be expected, and unfortunately for their own good and for the future of country life too many agriculturalists haven't been able to see what is happening to them. It is a promising thing for Canada that there are so many farmers who regard themselves as human beings and that they have formed themselves together into these Federations of Agriculture to plead for a reasonable and decent standard of living for the farm.

We hope that Ottawa, which lengthened the civil service day to seven and a half hours recently, will listen in time to give our 12 to 16 hours a day mixed farmers a chance to build up a surplus of foodstuffs for the starving millions of Europe and Asia when the end comes and to help bring that end.

REVOLUTIONARY IF TRUE

A revolutionary statement is made in the Toronto Daily Star of Jan. 9. It is a challenge to our Ontario department of education, to our boards of education and to service clubs like our Newmarket Lions club. Read it:

"Experiments made at the Universities of Toronto and Chicago have shown that vitamin B, which is found in green, leafy vegetables, in eggs, meat and whole-wheat, has a decisive effect on the learning ability of children. In some tests, where the children were put on improved rations, remarkable heightening of their intelligence was achieved. In a Chicago orphanage, for example, it was discovered through a feeding experiment that low mentality in children could be raised to normal and that they could even become bright children by eating proper food over a period of time. What were thought to be mentally deficient children were just children who had been starved and whose parents had been underfed."

The Star goes on to say that permanent damage results from continued improper feeding.

Newmarket and district people have as much to gain from the dominion nutrition campaign as the people of any munitions industry centre. First, we should learn something more about the sort of food that we ought to be eating, and then we must do something about it.

Should the community do something about it in our schools? Could the Lions club make some of its remedial work unnecessary by contributing toward free milk, free cod liver oil, or free vitamin tablets to be distributed in the schools? Could the school board reduce the number of "repeaters," and the cost of education by providing a "vitamin lunch" in the schools?

We live in times of great discoveries. It is for us to make use of the knowledge which science is giving us so freely.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

IMPACT OF PEACE

(Bowmanville Statesman)

Recently we visited some wartime industrial plants. One was a huge, government-owned, mushroom establishment, employing thousands of workers of both sexes drawn largely from rural Canada. This plant with its new housing units is spread across former farmsteads. Our thoughts reached into the future; to the day the bells would ring out the "cease fire." We sought answers to these questions: What was to become of the plant and what of these workers when peace came? The moment the guns were silenced, their production must cease. That seemed completely conclusive. The impact of peace would be felt full force in all such war plants. Would it mean breadlines again or had the government planned and plotted against the inevitable? We asked direct, pointed questions.

The replies of directing officials, generally were: "We are not worrying about all that; our plant at present is war-time production." We were left with the impression, whether right or wrong, that the government had no plans whatsoever to meet the situation. And employees themselves seemed completely unconcerned. The same attitude was evidenced generally among other long established industrial plants whose output today was almost wholly war-time commodities. With all this in mind, it seemed that the duty of the press lay in informing the public of the impressions gathered through these enquiries and these visits. If the situation is such as we have been led to believe, then the matter is one of the gravest concern. Are we to have the New Order we have heard so much about from responsible government sources? It would seem that we, the public, should begin to do something about it.

OAREB AND WPTB

(Fort Erie Times-Review)

In a bulletin issued by the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards, over the name of Charles E. Purnell, president, a strong and convincing protest is made against the order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board which provides for one-year's notice to vacate to tenants occupying houses sold after Dec. 9, 1942.

Claiming that the order has reduced to an absolute minimum sales of residential property in Canada, the bulletin makes this charge.

Rent control, first instituted as a measure to help prevent inflation, has now become almost complete control over the rights of those who own real property. The wedge has more than entered into the whole field of private ownership as regards housing accommodation and the situation is definitely producing a condition of exasperation in the minds of many earnestly loyal citizens.

One of the points stressed by Mr. Purnell is that it was not necessary to impose such drastic prohibitions on property sales to cure the evils which Donald Gordon, chairman of the WPTB, mentioned in his explanation of the one-year-notice regulation. He quotes Mr. Gordon as saying, "it is for the protection of soldiers' dependents," and argues that if the rules had applied only to the houses occupied by that class of tenant "there would not have been the spontaneous, adverse reaction that has arisen."

The Times-Review has already recorded its objection to the regulation under discussion. We are still unconvinced that wartime conditions justify such a violation of the rights of property owners. But if Mr. Purnell's suggestion had been followed, and the WPTB order had provided that only tenants who were soldiers' dependents had to be given one-year's notice to vacate, it is feared that those dependents eventually would have found themselves in a most difficult situation. Under such circumstances, would not landlords in general have been likely to discriminate against them as prospective tenants? Would a property-owner willingly rent his house to a soldier's dependent when he could get another tenant to whom only three-months' notice need be given?

IMPROVEMENT

(Barrie Examiner)

Shorter store hours and restrictions on the purchase of liquors, put into effect on Monday of this week by the Ontario Liquor Control Board, is a step in the right direction, though the resulting reduction of consumption may not be very great. The new hours give ample opportunity to buy and the patrons of the stores will soon accommodate themselves to the change. Limiting the number of bottles which may be bought in a month and the discontinuance of the 25 percent permit should, however, bring a decrease in purchases.

SOCIAL SERVICES

(Orillia Packet and Times)

Discussion of the proposal to establish medical health services in Orillia Township has again drawn attention to the weakness and unfairness of the present municipal system of taxation. This was probably the chief factor in bringing about the unfavorable verdict of the electors. The advantages of having a doctor who would give his whole time to efforts to maintain the health of the people, in accordance with modern ideas of preventive medicine, were manifest. The drawback was that the cost would not be equitably borne by the whole population of the township, but would fall entirely on owners of real estate. Non-residents would be called upon to pay for a service from which they would not benefit, while tenants would pay nothing, since there is no chance that rents could be raised.

It is manifest that, if social services are to be a municipal undertaking, the system of taxation will have to be broadened so that all who benefit by it will share in paying for their upkeep. Already the burden on real estate is crushing and unfair. And it tends to become increasingly so, with the result that people are being driven into smaller and smaller quarters, and owners of vacant land would in many cases be glad to give it away. Even the school taxes have become inequitable in their incidence, since tenancy has become the rule rather than the exception.

It is remarkable that, with the injustice and paralysing effect of the present system so manifest, no government or political party has yet had the initiative to put forward a comprehensive plan for remedying the situation. It is possible, of course, that relief may be found by the province taking over a larger share of the cost of education and social services. It is even hinted by the Hon. Mr. Kirby, minister of health for Ontario, that the federal government is considering a system of hospitalization for the whole dominion. Nothing can be much more certain than that the next forward move in social services will be in the direction of better protection for the health of the people, and providing hospital and medical care as a state responsibility, or on an insurance basis in which all will be compelled to join. The first question to be decided is what agency is to undertake the job—the federal government, the provinces or the municipalities. It is to be hoped there is not going to be expensive overlapping, as in other fields. But if the municipalities are to share in the work, then the first step, as a preliminary, is the complete revision of their system of taxation.

HAVE MANY DIFFICULTIES

(Dundalk Herald)

Bert Smith, editor of the Creemore Star, and himself a farmer before taking over the publication of that bright weekly, has this to say of members of his former calling:

"Farmers as a group have to contend with more difficulties than those in any other line of endeavor. They must have suitable weather to prepare their soil for seeding, and then again have suitable weather to gather in the crops. When the weather is unfavorable all plans are disturbed and accordingly serious losses or reduced income follow. When inclement weather conditions prevail for two or three years consecutively the tillers of the soil find themselves really up against it and through no fault of their own."

OLD PARTIES MUST WAKE UP

(Huntsville Forester)

(This interesting article from the Huntsville Forester appeared before the Progressive Conservative convention at Winnipeg.)

Warning the old parties that unless they "wake up from their present slumbers," they may suffer the humiliation of being numbered among the "has-beens" when the next election comes round, the Midland Free Press Herald sees the possibility of the C. C. F. making a strong bid for public favor, and possibly becoming so "powerful in both Ottawa and Toronto houses after the next election that life for the other fellows won't be any snap."

There are indications cropping up daily which lend color to the predictions made by the Free Press Herald. Undoubtedly the war has destroyed much of that buoyant feeling prevalent in normal times, that the success of the party for the party's sake, is an essential part of government. Public opinion is likely to veer from this angle under the stress of war suffering, and there is every reason to believe that, unless the old parties revamp their procedure, and get a new vision of the essentials of public service, they stand in danger of being supplanted by some forward-looking movement which will reconstruct much of the nation's political thinking.

War-time discontent is inevitable. In the pre-war period, the consequences of conflict have made a deeper impression on the public mind, than in any previous war. Taxation is more keenly felt; waste is recognized as a national offence; selfishness is abhorred; petty issues are submerged. The clamor is for serious recognition of the things which mean stability to the structure upon which we are to build the future.

These conditions cannot be met, nor the crying remedies for governmental weaknesses applied, unless there is a loosening of many prejudices which have bound us to systems stigmatized by selfish impulses.

The results of the war and its sacrifices are bound, as the Free Press Herald says, to find the people "in an extremely radical mood when the war ends." Political leaders, wearing the party stripe, can only meet this inevitable condition, by changing their course, lessening the stress on party interests, and shaping policies to definitely conform to the new thinking which is manifesting itself everywhere throughout the country.

The C. C. F. presents a definite program for action in the process of building a new world. It is in some respects radical—perhaps too radical in some of its features to attract favorable attention from some who look longingly for a change. But much in the form of radicalism will be tolerated, unless there is a sincere effort made by the existing parties to mould a new form of political outlook, which will embrace the essentials of the new life for which people will be longing when the conflict now raging is over, and toward which they desire to see definite and dependable foundations laid now.

It may be accepted without reservation, that the old conception of partisanship, and the old formula of "party before country," must in large measure go into the discard. New conceptions of public responsibility must be recognized, and if there is no evidence of a definite trend in the new direction which the fates of war have thrown athwart our old-time pathway, the foundations of selfish partisanship will die as certainly as Hitlerism is doomed to do.

Struggling along I faced the north and a bitter wind blew snow in my face, as I hastily cleared a space and deposited my offerings and stuck out all over the tree. I'll swear Wooly laughed as she watched my efforts to keep upright in the places where ice lurked underneath the snow, and I staggered back into the house, vowing if this is a real Canadian winter I hoped it would be short.

But when I regained my breath and my temper, the beauty of it all struck me—and I felt as if I had been transplanted bodily into one of Hans Anderson's fairy tales.

From the tallest tree to the smallest shrub, everything had been transformed into a snowy replica of itself—there was a certain unreality about it all, as if a spell of silence had been cast over the world, for no car passed, no sound but the wind's voice broke the stillness, and only time served to accentuate it, as if it were part of that strange, unreal world, and we were not.

Then the spell was broken: there was the jolly sound of sleigh-bells, and along the road came two sleighs bearing milk cans to the beleaguered milk truck. Then the silence settled again, to be broken this time by

"I hope it would be short."

But when I regained my breath and my temper, the beauty of it all struck me—and I felt as if I had been transplanted bodily into one of Hans Anderson's fairy tales.

From the tallest tree to the smallest shrub, everything had been transformed into a snowy replica of itself—there was a certain unreality about it all, as if a spell of silence had been cast over the world, for no car passed, no sound but the wind's voice broke the stillness, and only time served to accentuate it, as if it were part of that strange, unreal world, and we were not.

Then the spell was broken: there was the jolly sound of sleigh-bells, and along the road came two sleighs bearing milk cans to the beleaguered milk truck. Then the silence settled again, to be broken this time by

"I hope it would be short."

But when I regained my breath and my temper, the beauty of it all struck me—and I felt as if I had been transplanted bodily into one of Hans Anderson's fairy tales.

DOWN THE CENTRE

Ivan Gilbey, junior member of the Sutton clan, who, while still a junior, formed a strong link in the Sutton Greenhorns intermediate championship chain last winter, is being counted on for a regular place with Barrie Colts in junior A this winter. Gilbey is stationed at Camp Borden and is still of junior age. We have no hesitation in saying that if Aurora had been able to use him last year he would have provided the drive needed in the playdowns. Almost as big as and much faster than his elder brother, "Bud," Ivan should prove a favorite in Barrie. Brother "Bud" is, of course, over-age.

Barrie has practically a new line-up in hand. Harry Lumley of Owen Sound is on hand for goal, Armstrong of Lindsay, Wilson of Marlboro, Klosky of Gravenhurst, and McGuire from Ottawa. St. Pat's are new additions. Borden Wheeler, perennial forward, McGill from Orillia, and Trooper George Fennell of last year's team are still available, although all three must be close to the junior borderline.

That looks like a better team for "Happy" Emmons to deal with than Larry Molyncaus was provided with last year. Molyncaus has promised to lend a hand with the Aurora Intermediate O.H.A. entry to be picked from the town league teams when the play-offs start. He will have no big stars but plenty of good material to sort out.

Russell Welch, who was a regular wingman the year Aurora went through to the junior C title and who has not played much since, has turned up playing senior T.H.L. commercial. Welch was a find of Charlie Rowntree and filled the wing gap to perfection. His flaming red hair was popular with the fans. He is now playing on defence, having added quite a few pounds of avoidupolis.

Of that team, Ross Follott is with King City, and Gordy Bone and "Duke" Dennis with Middlebrook's Aces. All three are genuine farmers and doing a needed job. Bone, of course, was in the army and honorably discharged. Jim Cummings and "Joint" McComb, both defence workers, are stars in the West Toronto mercantile. Pete Dorkin, now at J.M.C.S., York, is also playing mercantile. Frankie Carr, Joe McGhee, Frank Michanuk, Mervyn Broughton, Keith Knowles and Crowder are all in uniform and perhaps still chasing the elusive rubber wherever they may be.

Rural minor hockey is played each Tuesday night at Richmond Hill arena, with teams from Maple, Emery, Richmond Hill and Langstaff taking part. A lacrosse loop of a similar nature a few years ago did well financially and this year's hockey circuit should prove no exception. Maple won the opener 3-1 from Emery.

As the latter centre is near where Charlie Rowntree lives, don't be surprised if the round farmer gets back in the coaching end. Humber Summit had a rural team that went to the B finals from the same district.

Richmond Hill has two minor hockey teams, not one as we had thought. Jack Warwick of Richvale is coaching the midget team, which is made up of district boys, while Jimmy Grainger is handling the minor-midgets, midway between midget and bantam age, and all Hill youngsters. Both teams are entered in the T.H.L.

Irwin Brown, the mild-mannered Lansing boy who played for Aurora Juniors two years ago, has been promoted to corporal by the R.C.A.F. and is stationed at Estevan. SASKATCHEWAN

THIS YEAR Put your brooder to work Earlier Than Ever Before

TO SERVE BEST and profit most from this year's urgent need for more eggs and more poultry meat, start good chicks earlier than ever before. Put your brooder to work 3, or 4, or even 5 weeks ahead of your usual time! That will give you more time to look after them properly before the Spring rush . . . more time to grow and develop them properly before Fall . . . and give you bigger, better birds, laying bigger eggs when demand is highest and supplies lowest, next October and November.

ORDER WHAT YOU NEED EARLY

Be "forehanded." The days are feed, money and hope on second-gone when you could walk into raters. Don't order TOO MANY. Over again with all the goods you crowding is disastrous. Good chicks grow fast. They need more room every day. Don't if you need anything—repairs and replacements, even a handful of hails—and-order them NOW. Make common sense tell you that you can raise RIGHT. If you want to raise more than your brooding equipment will handle at one time, start one brood EXTRA early, and another in the spring. Kidney Acids
Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and twist - lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, hiccups often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills - for half a century the favorite remedy. 101 Dodd's Kidney Pills

ICICLESBy GOLDEN GLOW

Never in my life have I seen such a crop of icicles as we had last week! Huge, thick long icicles that would split a man's head wide open if one fell on him. They fringe the edge of the roof on nearly every home in town, and, with all the snow we had as well, make pictures just like you see on Christmas cards, sparkling snow and crystal clear icicles.

For two days we had it clear and cold (good and cold too!) and with the pure white snow, and the deep blue sky above, with the trees all festooned with snow wreaths—it was a picture we will not forget very soon.

The snow was rather a surprise to us all when we got up a week ago Monday morning, and many a person tramped to work through snow up to their knees, for the snow-plow had a good deal of work to do that day and it was quite late before walks and roads were clear. However, by Friday all the main streets were clear, the town men had it all cleared away, and quite a few side streets as well.

But the icicles! They were not so easily gotten rid of! They hung from the corners of houses in most inaccessible places; they hung over windows with storm-sash on so that you couldn't get at them from an open window; they hung by the dozens from the roofs of stores on Main St., creating a menace to pedestrians.

For days they hung, each day getting ever longer and longer, ever thicker and thicker, till some of them developed into most formidable weapons, and the powers that be were organized for a counter attack, and I trust we won out! I gather manpower did win out, for I have not heard of any accident, but I assure you they might have caused serious trouble instead.

NORTH Gwillimbury
TOWNSHIP TREASURER
ERWIN WINCH RESIGNS

North Gwillimbury township council held its first meeting for 1943 at Belhaven on Monday. A very limited audience was on hand to see the new council sworn in and get down to business, possibly because it was the third start for the same council.

The tender of R. J. Stork for maintenance of Keswick street lights and community hall lighting was accepted. The 1943 printing contract was awarded to The Newmarket Era and Express.

The council accepted the resignation of Erwin Winch, Belhaven, treasurer, who has capably filled this office since 1935.

Mr. Winch gives up the office on account of pressure of other work. Tribute was paid to the good relations which had always existed between treasurer and council during his term of office. It was then decided by the council that the work of clerk and treasurer should be consolidated in one office and accordingly Fred Peel, Keswick, was appointed treasurer.

By-laws were passed to provide for township borrowings from the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the Bank of Nova Scotia. Carl Morton was appointed building inspector.

The following accounts were passed for payment: S. S. No. 2, Keswick, $500; Hydro-Electric Power Commission, re Keswick street lights, $174.42; St. Michael's hospital, Toronto, $150; Alvin Ryer, wood, $4.35; Jos. Irving, wood, $120; R. J. Stickwood at Orillia, Dave Rawlings at Newmarket and Murray Huntley and Leon Hopkins are at Toronto. Rex Smith is serving at Ottawa and Robt. Arnold is now at Prince George, B. C. Wm. Burkholder is overseas. Interesting letters have been received from Wm. Burkholder and he says he is still following his favorite sport, hockey.

A letter received from Robt. Arnold tells of the interest the boys take in the work of the church. Attending a service one Sunday evening, he says, he found the church half full of soldiers.

The increased attendance at church last Sunday was encouraging.

The friendly snow-plow has been doing its duty on the roadside and the cars are now able to move about freely.

The second in a series of missionary addresses will be given in the United church on Sunday morning. The address entitled "The Re-making of Man in Angels," will be illustrated with lantern slides. This address will also be given in the fourth line school at Hope at 2.30 and at Sharon church at 7.30 p.m.

JUNIOR LODGEMEN HOLD LADIES' NIGHT

The junior branch of the Sons of England held their installation of new officers for 1943 in the lodge hall, followed by a banquet, on Monday evening.

It was ladies' night, which has become an annual event with the junior lodge, when mothers of the juniors and wives of the seniors are invited to the meeting to watch proceedings.

One new member was initiated. The ceremony was watched with great interest by the guests, being essentially religious and patriotic.

The district deputy from Toronto, accompanied by two helpers, conducted the installation. Later all three made delightful speeches at the banquet table.

The district deputy has promised a wristwatch or its equivalent to the junior bringing in the most members by next December.

George Chantler is the president of the juniors for 1943.

The Sons of England have the honor of counting former members of the lodge in all three branches of the services, besides having a former president a prisoner of war in Germany since Dieppe.

HAS OVERSEAS BIRTHDAYSUTTON HOCKEY TEAM WINS SECOND GAME

Sutton defeated Beaverton by a 6-2 score at Sutton Wednesday night to make their second victory in as many games. They defeated Pefferlaw in the opening game 7-0. Beaverton gave the Sutton squad some real opposition and missed on several occasions what looked like certain goals. They showed real fighting spirit all the way.

The locals scored twice in the initial period on efforts by Roger Bell and Andy Lonergan.

After five minutes of the second period Andy Lonergan scored to make the count 3-0. Four minutes later Ernie Dunne broke away for Sutton's fourth goal. Beaverton made the score sheet three minutes later when Ken Reid, fast skating forward, rounded the defense for a well-earned goal.

In the final period, after 55 seconds of play, Lloyd Morrison made it 4-2 on a clever play. Geo. Holborn scored from close in for Sutton's fifth counter. Ernie Dunne skated through and passed to Lonergan for the final goal of the game.

Sutton drew four penalties compared with none to Beaverton. Cec. Carpenter was the referee.

Beaverton: goal, Jim Lynn; defence, Lawrence Clayton, Merrill Dukeuk; centre, Murray Juffs; wings, Ken Reid and Ross Westcott; alternates, Bill Smith, Ivan McHattie, Don Ritchie, Lloyd Morrison, Jas. Taylor, Mel Drury.

FORMER NEWMARKETER WEDS IN KITCHENER

The wedding took place during the Christmas season of Olive Elsie Feasby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Feasby, Kitchener, formerly of Newmarket, to Wilson Stanley Kaufman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Kaufman, Kitchener. Rev. E. O. Seymour performed the ceremony in a candlelight setting with ferns and white chrysanthemums. Miss Grace Schmidt, cousin of the groom, played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a bridal gown with white velvet and net bodice and floor-length net and taffeta skirt, with a finger-tip veil and carried a sheaf of white and pink carnations and chrysanthemums.

MANPOWER IS MAJOR FACTOR IN GOALSSTATEMENT IS ISSUED BY DOMINION-PROVINCIAL FARM CONFERENCE

(From the Rural Co-operators)

The availability of skilled farm manpower was recognized by the dominion-provincial conference at Ottawa recently as a major factor in determining whether or not 1943 food production objectives will be attained.

A statement, making specific recommendations for dealing with farm labor, was drafted by a special committee of the conference. The committee consisted of Hon. John A. McDonald, Hon. D. L. Campbell, Dr. Auld, Dr. Longman, A. Morin, W. R. Reek and H. H. Hannam. The latter was appointed chairman.

The statement dealt with in the final session was as follows:

In view of the findings of this conference with respect to food requirements in terms of farm products to meet the needs of the civilian population in Canada, the armed forces, ship stores and other additional war services in Canada, and export commitments for the Allied Nations; and

In view of the increased production required for 1943 in the face of a decreasing labor supply:

The conference is of the opinion that the urgent necessity for conserving and supplementing the skilled farm labor resources must be recognized and, in view of the misunderstanding and confusion which exist with respect to farm manpower, the importance of clear definition of the manpower policy as it is expected to apply to agriculture is evident.

With a view to contributing to the solution of the difficulties inherent in the farm manpower problem the following proposals are submitted for the consideration of the National Selective Service authorities:

1. That agricultural manpower policies be administered with the assistance of local farm committees and the provincial departments of agriculture, working in conjunction with the employment and selective service offices;

2. That the initial call up which goes out to men in farms be regulated so that they may clearly understand what the basic means, in respect to their status as an essential agricultural worker, and state definitely what procedure they should follow for obtaining deferment;

3. That all farm workers whose essentially has been established should be given some form of official recognition which would indicate they are performing an important war service;

4. That a much larger proportion
